After that, the attitude of parents towards family members and life changes for the better. Along with this, parents are obliged to raise a healthy, well-mannered, educated and skilful child.

The aim of the article is to reveal the process of raising a child as a rather not easy tasks.

Research results. In Tajikistan, the Law of the Republic of Tajikistan on the responsibility of parents for the education and upbringing of children is in force [1].

Respecting and respecting adults, showing interest and kindness to kids, showing sincerity and compassion to friends, a child learns in a family. Children who grow up in healthy families are necessary for the nation. The most important tool in parenting is the success of the Trinity; love, discipline and seriousness. Parents who follow this path will be restless and relaxed, and society will be prosperous and safe.

Only educated children with modern professions and jobs can contribute to the creation of a progressive and civilized state.

The upbringing of children in the spirit of high patriotism and reverence for national shrines comes primarily from a family environment. If a child has not been brought up in a calm and healthy environment since childhood and does not understand the essence of education and training, he faces many difficulties in later life.

According to Abuali ibn Sina, education takes place in three stages, one of the most sensitive and important stages of which is the education of the younger generation, which covers from 2 to 7 years (the first is from 2 to 7 years, the second is from 7 to 14 years, and the third is from 14 to 18 years). Based on what has been said, we can consider the family to be the main and reliable source of education, since the younger generation is brought up and grows up in a family environment. Of course, kindergarten and school also make a significant contribution to this process, but the main source of education is the family. Learning at these stages is similar to drawing a stone, because during this period a person is free from sadness and pain and has a strong memory. To back up this statement, let's give an example of Ibn Sina's thought, who said: «What I learned and preserved was up to 18 years old, after I learned, it did not decrease or increase».

One of the actions that plays an important role in making children mature is to awaken their bookish taste. To achieve this goal, that is, in order to arouse interest in reading, we need, first of all, to be a librarian and be able to set an example for a child. Because the child has a good learning trait, and he imitates more, which means that everything we do in the home environment or outside it has an impact on the child. Every family should make efforts to contribute to the development of the child's personality and increase his level of knowledge. For the proper upbringing of the younger generation, the family needs to establish close and close cooperation with pupils and educational institutions. Because the education of the younger generation is not only the responsibility of the educator and educator, but also the primary task of parents. Taking this into account, the Government of the country has adopted a new law called «parental responsibility in the upbringing of children», which regulates the responsibility of parents and encourages them to make efforts to educate their child. The future is to raise their child the way they want to see, from the little one of the same. Because the great ones did not say in vain:

The first brick is bent like an architect,

The curved wall goes to the end.

That is, in order to build a good future for a child, we must attach great importance to education and upbringing. The task of each of us is to create a favorable atmosphere for the child so that he can choose his future [2].

In the upbringing of children, parents should know the rights of children and observe them in everyday life. In the upbringing of a child, a girl and a boy are both equal. Unsurulmaolii Kaikovus say:

- So, whatever you try to learn from goodness and skill, you must teach the child so that you have the right to fatherhood and compassion, who were not safe from the events of the world and did not know what was going to happen to people. Every craft and grace will come to work that day. So learning in generosity and craft is not necessary to make a coronation. And by the time the teachers hit him, he was merciful and allowed the child to study science, literature and craft on a stick, and not according to his taste. But if he is impolite and you are angry with him, scold him with your own hands, take your teachers and order them to write so that your resentment does not penetrate into his heart. But go camping with her so that she doesn't humiliate you and isn't afraid of you all the time. And diram zar, and longing for him, sparing his orbit is bad-so much so that you can, so that because of the wire sea, your death cannot be inherited or discredited.

And the child's right to learn from culture and knowledge. And if you (O Prophet) have a bad child, then you (O Prophet) do not give him [the descendants of Israel] (any) guidance (from Allah). Although, if he doesn't have wisdom, if you study, and if not, then he devours your livelihood.

But keep the condition of fatherhood so that he lives the way he sent. And when he [Prophet Ibrahim] came from a man, his temperament and mystery were with him [with hell]. But zee can't find weakness and weakness. Even though he gets bigger, his body and spirit become more cavitic, and his verb appears from good to bad until he becomes mature, his habit will also mature. May you make literature, art and culture your legacy and leave her so that you let her know that children are not an inheritance, and children of the masses are not the best legacy, although this is not the most important thing, the craft is different. But, judging by my close truth, pesha is the greatest craft. And there is nothing wrong with the fact that if our majestic children know a hundred times when they are making a career, but this is a craft, each of them comes to work one day [3, pp.105].

Every parent in the upbringing of a child is obliged to protect the interests of his child and choose the form, type and method of education, educational institution in the interests of the child's health and spiritual development. Dear parents should continue their sacred mission – the upbringing of chastity, beauty, humanism, hard work and landscaping on the territory of their children, to educate the younger generation of our independent country in the spirit of Great patriotic pride, so that they can confidently carry the flag of our state to future well-maintained and peaceful horizons.

Conclusions. Good upbringing and providing favorable conditions for children is currently the responsibility and mission of parents. If this mission is carried out in conjunction with the constructive activities of teachers, that is, a good and constant connection between the school and parents will be established, children, of course, will follow the right path and receive the right education and upbringing.
